How to Respond to the Prefectural Ordinance for the Elimination of Organized Crime Groups and the Points to Pay Attention to

[Event to Be Held in English]

As of October 1, 2011, the “Prefectural Ordinance for the Elimination of Organized Crime Groups”(the “Ordinance”) has become effective in each of the entire 47 prefectures in Japan. Under the “Ordinance,” business enterprises are required to make efforts not to associate with organized crime groups. For this reason, business enterprises are required to engage in business activities based on the “Ordinance,” such as by including in contracts provisions related to the elimination of organized crime groups. In response, we are holding a seminar on the topic of “How to Respond to the Prefectural Ordinance for the Elimination of Organized Crime Groups and the Points to Pay Attention to,” on Tuesday, July 3, 2012.

This seminar will cover ① the outline of the “Ordinance,” ② the points to pay attention to when a business enterprise executes a contract, and ③ the examination of specific cases prohibited by the “Ordinance.” We will use examples and provide clear explanations on how to respond to the Ordinance and the points to pay attention to.
